NCALB CHAIRMAN'S CORNER

CONTINUING EDUCATION MAY NOT BE AS DIFFICULT AS YOU THINK

The intent of auctioneer continuing education is to help protect the public by keeping practicing professionals current on auction law and rules & regulations. I believe that continuing education makes all of us better at what we do. Continuing education is absolutely vital to our providing the best possible services to our patrons. It also helps us learn about the latest trends.

In order to lawfully continue to auction for the public, licensees must renew their licenses prior to the expiration date. As a licensed auctioneer, I often hear comments about the difficulty and costs of obtaining continuing education credits. There are now several options available for continuing education that will make it easier to obtain this vital information. Licensees now have the choice of online courses or they may attend one of the many on site courses available across the state. We want to make it easy for licensees to keep their licenses active.

There are several new classes for continuing education this year. There is also a new DVD on Rules and Regulations hosted by our legal counsel Garris Neil Yarborough. A lot of time and effort has gone into this DVD to inform all licensees of the rules & regulations and auctioneer law. The board would like to hear licensees' comments on the continuing education classes and the new DVD. Refer to page two for the upcoming free continuing education classes.

CONTINUING EDUCATION

All auctioneers, apprentice auctioneers, and designated person(s) of an auction firm must have 4 hours of continuing education credit in order to renew their licenses. The new fiscal year starts on July 1, 2010 and ends on June 30, 2011. These 4 hours of continuing education must be in the NCALB office by May 15, 2010. You may fax (919-567-2865) or email (info@ncalb.org) your CE hours. Renewal applications will be mailed to those who have satisfied the continuing education requirement toward the end of May.

Below is a list of free Board approved continuing education courses, but are not mandatory. Additionally, other Board approved continuing education courses may be found at our website www.ncalb.org. Real Estate CE's and any seminar/course that will benefit you in the auction profession is acceptable.

For the following classes, "Firearms, Alcohol and Auction Law" no registration is required, simply attend and bring your auctioneer license pocket card.
